Reviewer A:
Recommendation: Revisions Required

A. Relevance: this paper has conformity between its content and offered topics.

Good

B. Contribution: this paper contains originality, novelty and innovation.

Fair

C. Grammar: this paper is grammatically correct, uses appropriate dictions, has clear explanation and easily to understand.

Good

D. Abstract: concise, clear, comprehensive, and readable.

Fair

E. Suggestion(s):

Title:

The author has written the title well; it contains methods and solutions that have represented the contents.

Abstract:

1. Sentence 1, Page 1: "The Covid-19 pandemic that has spread in Indonesia since the beginning of 2020 impacts policy changes and the learning process at Universitas Budi Luhur (UBL)..." This appears to be a sentence fragment. Consider rewriting it as a complete sentence.

2. The author needs to explain in more detail the urgency of the research. The user acceptance level needs to be done because UBL has already used e-learning for a long time.

Introduction:

1. Paragraph 1, Page 1: "The high level of the coronavirus (COVID-19) spread in Indonesia has prompted..." COVID stands for coronavirus disease.
2. There is no information on the x and y axes on the chart in Figure 1.
3. Paragraph 3, Page 2: "Several ways that can be used to measure the acceptance of information systems include TAM [3], [4], UTAUT [5], and TPB" There is no explanation the stands for TAM, UTAUT and TPB.

Method:

The author has written the method well.

Result and Discussion:

The author has written the method well.

Conclusion:

The author has mentioned all components that should be written in conclusion, namely: restate the proposed method, main finding, but, there is no the future work.

References:

Less recent references, there are about 35% references over 5 years. The author should improve their references.

Reviewer B:

Recommendation: Revisions Required

A. Relevance: this paper has conformity between its content and offered topics.

Good

B. Contribution: this paper contains originality, novelty and innovation.

Good

C. Grammar: this paper is grammatically correct, uses appropriate dictions, has clear explanation and easily to understand.

Good

D. Abstract: concise, clear, comprehensive, and readable.

Good

E. Suggestion(s):

This paper is good enough to explain the research conducted. However, there is something missing in the CTAM explanation adopted from previous studies, but the distribution of system characteristics and individual factors needs a more detailed explanation.

Furthermore, this study uses 21 hypotheses that require strong reasons.

The use of Smart PLS has not been reflected in the visualization of the model and the stages of using Smart PLS are still lacking in information.

Reviewer C:
Recommendation: Resubmit for Review

A. Relevance: this paper has conformity between its content and offered topics.

Fair

B. Contribution: this paper contains originality, novelty and innovation.

Bad

C. Grammar: this paper is grammatically correct, uses appropriate dictions, has clear explanation and easily to understand.

Fair

D. Abstract: concise, clear, comprehensive, and readable.

Fair

E. Suggestion(s):

Please add the explanation of population size, sampling technique, sample size determination method, sample size.

revise the summary of research findings because not all hypotheses accepted.

please justify why the authors use TAM instead UTAUT.

do not present the previous research findings using table, please synthesis the findings.

please provide the variable operationalization. please justify why there is only 1 indicator to explain a variable.

please justify why use Isaac and Michael for determining the sample size. the suitable sample size should be around 300++ please elaborate the sampling technique. quota or stratified random sampling should be apply.

please elaborate the procedure for questionnaire distribution and the timeline

the proportion of respondent should be balance

please include the mean value of each indicator please contrast the hyphtesis testing result with the previous research findings.

please identify the research contribution and managerial implication

please specify the potential variable should be tested in the future research

please identify the research limitation
